Total Anticipated First Year Expenses

*If applying outside Australia, include AU$2,000 (except if applying from East or Southern Africa, include AU$2,500; West Africa include AU$3,000).

You and your accompanying family member(s) must demonstrate that you will have genuine access to funds while you are in Australia.

Some examples of how to provide evidence of access to genuine funds includes:

- Annual income requires evidence that your parents or your partner had a personal annual income of at least AUD$62,222 in the 12 months immediately before you apply. If you bring family members to Australia, you must demonstrate your parents' or partner's income is at least AUD$72,592.
- When another person or business is providing funds, show evidence of the relationship and any history of financial support provided to the student or any other students. It is also good practice to provide identity documents for the person providing the funds or evidence that the business is currently operating.
- If relying on a money deposit, any recent large deposits must be explained. You may also consider explaining ongoing deposits – like wages.
- If you have an education loan to cover tuition fees or living expenses (such as accommodation) disbursement should occur according to the agreement between the bank, provider and yourself. Evidence of any disbursement should be provided. Evidence of the terms of the loan and the full amount of the loan that will be disbursed will be required before EIT can issue a CoE.
- If you are relying on another type of loan, you may consider showing evidence of collateral used to get the loan, the terms of the agreement and capacity to cover ongoing costs. The best evidence of genuine access for a loan is full disbursement.
- If a sponsor is providing financial support; a signed support letter or affidavit, along with certified ID of the sponsor.

Please complete the table below detailing the financial evidence which will be submitted to Department of Home Affairs with your Student Visa application.

Note: EIT do not require evidence of the financial documents listed below, however we reserve the right to request copies of the nominated documents at any time.
